FINAL ORDER TO LINER'S ENGINE ROOM WAS CRAZY

Would Have Left Morro Castle Turning in Wild Circles

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The final order from the bridge of the burning liner Morro Castle to the engine room, would have left the ship turning crazily in circles, it was added today at a Federal inquiry into the disaster.

The log of William W. Tripp, chief engineer on the Morro Castle, was read before the department of commerce board headed by Dickerson N. Hoover, and it showed that the last order telegraphed from the bridge called for:

"Full speed ahead on the starboard engine, full speed astern on the port engine."

Tripp, a Boston Tech student, testified that this order, as noted in his log, came at 2:21 o'clock. (CST) but that in the confusion and growing heat of the engine room, it was not carried out.

No Order to Stop
At no time, his log disclosed, did an order come from the bridge to stop the engines—at least not up to 2:29 when the telegraph system between bridge and engine room stopped working.

Tripp described how the smoke poured into the engine room, how he and his fellow-workers lighted matches and groped through shafts and up ladders to safety after the lights went out.

"The smoke came on us like a fog," the witness said.

"Were the ventilators the cause?"

"They could have been one cause."

Queried further, he said he knew of no reason why the ventilating system was not shut down.

The ship's engines were stopped about two minutes after the lights went out, he said.

No Fuel Used
Rumors that Captain Robert R. Willmott, who died several hours before the Morro Castle was swept by fire, had met with foul play were spiked today by an officer of the liner.

Howard Hansen, fourth officer of the liner, told the board that he had been summoned to the dead captain's room, that he had tried to revive him unsuccessfully.

"And were there any marks of violence on Captain's Willmott's body?" asked Karl C. Nielsen, hull inspector.

"Not that I saw," was the answer.

Rumors that Captain Willmott had died from unnatural causes, probably through poisoning, were responsible for analysis of his charred remains.

Didn't Know Signal
Quizzed closely about the part he played in fighting the flames, Hansen testified he was not familiar with the operations of certain parts of the Morro Castle's fire signal system.

Nielsen remarked that it seemed "strange" for a ship's officer to profess this ignorance.

The witness said that he had heard no orders given from the bridge to lower lifeboats, and that he had no fire doors closed to block the advance of the flames.

Previously, a passenger, Doris Wacker, 18, of Roselle Park, N. J., testified that after she had emerged from her cabin to the deck she saw no officers about, nor were there any stewards in evidence to assist the frantic passengers.

Seven Counties of State Warned to Retrench or Perish

Chicago, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Commissioners of seven Illinois counties were warned that the only way for them to save their governments is to retrench.

Dr. Allen D. Albert, authority on governmental problems, told the commissioners at a meeting last night that "no one can question that county governments cost more than they should and render less than they should."

Counties represented were Kane, Tazewell, LaSalle, Kankakee, Will, McLean and Cook.

Parents of Six Getting Revenge on Electric Company for Cutting Service When Little Girl was Ill

Camden, N. J., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A mother of six who sat with her legs dangling in a pole hole for 37 hours, yielded her seat to her husband early today, and he carried on the blockade to prevent erection of a pole by the electric company.

Mrs. Elsie Barnable and her husband say it's their revenge for the time the Public Service Electric & Gas Company turned off the light when their little girl was sick.

Now, they note, it costs the company several dollars an hour to keep men there waiting for the light to be turned on.

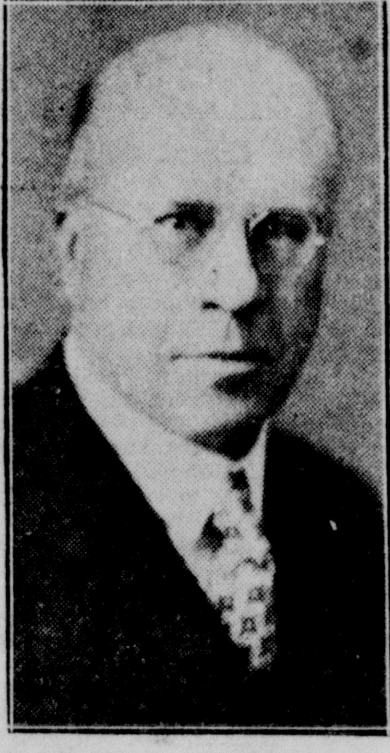

One complaint against the Barnables came from a neighbor, Deny Di Reizo, who said the life of his brother, Joseph, 23, a paralytic invalid, is being endangered.

Deny claims Joseph cannot eat except when his muscles are paralyzed now.

Famous Farm Editor And Lecturer Comes To Dixon Under Telegraph Auspices

Famous Editor on Agriculture to Speak in City

CHAS. F. COLLISON

Farm editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, whose writings and lectures on agriculture have become famous all over the country, will deliver a free lecture to farmers of Lee and adjoining counties at the Dixon high school gymnasium at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Sept. 29. Every farmer in this part of the state is invited and urged to attend this meeting, which is sponsored by the Evening Telegraph, through the cooperation of the Minneapolis Tribune and the Dixon board of education.

LAFOLLETTE IS FAR BEHIND IN WISCONSIN POLL

New Progressive Outfit Fails to Make Any Showing

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Governor Albert G. Schmedeman, target of the new Progressive party, was renominated by the Democrats in yesterday's primary by the largest vote accorded any candidate.

In comparison with his vote-getting strength, Philip F. LaFollette and Howard T. Greene, Progressive and Republican gubernatorial nominees respectively, lagged far behind with less than 500 precincts out of 2916 missing.

The campaign plea of Philip LaFollette and his brother, Senator Robert M. Jr., for a heavy turnout in favor of the new political alignment failed to produce the desired results. Robert LaFollette, unopposed for the Progressive nomination, polled a vote about equal that given his brother.

While the entire Democratic state ticket, labeled "reactionary" by the Progressives, was increasing its strength in every county the LaFollette and Greene Republicans fell far short of equalling the vote cast for their respective candidates two years ago when they fought their battles in the Republican column.

Every Farmer Invited to Free Lecture on Sat., Sept. 29

Farmers of Lee and adjoining counties are to be offered an especially outstanding educational opportunity at the Dixon High School gymnasium at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Sept. 29, by the Dixon Evening Telegraph through the cooperation of F. E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, the Dixon school board and Prof. J. N. Weiss, in charge of the vocational agriculture department of the Dixon high school.

At that time Charles F. Collisson, farm editor of the Minneapolis Tribune one of the outstanding agriculturists of the nation, will deliver a free lecture and will discuss plans for building up the farming industry in this community. This meeting will be free to everyone, and The Telegraph extends an invitation to every farmer in Lee and surrounding counties to attend.

Editor Collisson's writings and addresses on agriculture have become famous all over the country.

"The interest never lags when Collisson gets into action," wrote one editor in the east. "He keeps everyone on the edge of his chair for the fun comes fast and furious. Mr. Collisson is a man of wit and pungent wit and sparkling humor and anecdote, while never forgetting that he has a real serious message for everybody interested in America's greatest industry—farming."

Developed Plan
Since 1921 Mr. Collisson has been in charge of the Tribune's farm development movement, now famous as "the Minnesota plan," under the direction of the publisher, F. E. Murphy.

The latter is one of the outstanding and successful farmers and breeders of Holstein cattle in America. On his 6,000-acre Pemco farm, in the Red River Valley, near Breckenridge, Minn., he develops some of the finest world-record cows of the breed.

At Camp Glendalough, Battle Lake, Minn., his summer home, he also breeds ducks, pheasants and other game birds, besides raising about 7,500 turkeys every year. He

THREE DIED IN FARM HOME AT GRAFTON TODAY

Two Others Burned as Six of Family Made Their Escapes

Grafton, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Three persons were burned to death when the farm home of Harry Lagate, three miles west of here, was destroyed by fire early today. The dead: Grace Lagate, 21; Frieda Lagate, 11; and Orville Crull, 2, grandson of Harry Lagate. Two other persons were injured, and six escaped without injury.

The three who perished were trapped in their rooms on the second floor of the farm home, which was in an isolated district. The origin of the fire was not definitely determined, but it was believed to have started from a kitchen flue.

Corla Lagate, 15, and Earl Lagate, 24, were burned and injured when they jumped from the second-story window.

Corla Lagate carried the Crull child to a window. She put him down to unlatch the screen and was unable to find him again.

DEMOCRATS AID IN RAISING A CAMPAIGN FUND

Even Horner and Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, Boosted Effort

Chicago, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The celebration of Constitution Day at the World's fair, it appears, was a $125,000 financial coup for the Cook county Republican party.

Few of the loyal Democrats among the crowd of nearly 360,000 who jammed the fair grounds last Monday realized that by their presence they were helping to swell the coffers of the opposition. The inside story did not come out until the day was over and receipts counted and the jubilant Republicans no longer able to withhold their secret.

The county organization, looking for a chance to capitalize on their slogan, "Stick to the Constitution," saw in Constitution Day a golden opportunity to spread their message. It was not until the plans were well under way, however, that they saw a chance to make the word "golden" literal as well as figurative.

Originally, the Republicans said, they planned to hold a paid admission pageant at Soldier Field. When they learned that a free pageant, "The Drama of Chicago on Parade," was to be given at the same place the preceding night, they saw that there would be little chance to sell tickets for a pageant on Constitution Day.

Evolved New Idea
Thereupon Julius H. Miner, chairman of the county finance committee, turned to the world's fair. He evolved the idea of a $1 admission to the fair which would also be good for 22 of the leading concessions.

Arrangements were then made with the fair management for wholesale prices on general admissions. Tickets soon appeared in all parts of the city and suburbs offering some $6 worth of attractions for a dollar.

Came then an announcement that the Constitution Day celebration was to be sponsored, not by the Republican county committee, but by a non-partisan civic body, headed by prominent citizens. A "non-partisan" program was heralded, with speakers from both parties on the platform.

Ex-Sen. Reed Headliner
The Democratic speaker proved to be former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, militant anti-new-dealer and life-long defender of the constitution.

The climax of the program was Reed's talk in the Court of States, in which he fired broadside after broadside at the policies of the Democratic leaders in power.

The Republicans, therefore, were chucking today over the success of their plans. They had raised a considerable sum for the fall campaign, and it was admitted that the prospects of raising money from non-party members had been poor.

Horner, Kelly Help
In addition, and which many hold more important, they had put their "Stick to the Constitution" slogan before the largest gathering of the year.

In their coup the Republicans were aided by Mayor Kelley of Chicago and Governor Henry Horner, who issued Constitution Day proclamations when their constituents appealed to them.

INVESTIGATION OF ASSESSMENTS IS AUTHORIZED

Board of Review Will Continue Probe of County Records

The finance committee of the board of supervisors, members of the Lee County Taxpayers Association met yesterday afternoon in the county court room with Attorney Frank S. Regan of Rockford, tax expert. The meeting was arranged by the officers of the association for the purpose of urging the continuation of the board of review's investigation into county records to uncover property upon which no tax has been paid. After a session what at times became quite active, the finance committee went into a meeting with the board of review members and a decision was reached. The finance committee authorized the continuation of the investigation by the board of review to proceed through the month of October and until the first of November.

Supervisors D. H. Spencer, Gilbert Finch, Henry Knecht, Lucien Hemmaway and Leon Hart, comprising the finance committee, met with the officials of the Taxpayers association, the members of the board of review, Chairman John Finn and Mark D. Smith and Wm. Daum being present. President W. F. Aydelotte of the Association, briefly explained the purpose of the meeting which was called to repeat the association's request that the board of review be empowered to complete its investigation and that all taxable property in Lee county be uncovered.

Get Cooperation
Attorney Regan spent some time in recounting incidents which arose in Winnebago county where a strict search of the county records is being made for the purpose of uncovering various instruments which have been drawn for the purpose of tax evasion.

G. P. Finch, secretary to the board of review, stated that several trustees of estates and properties in Dixon were showing a fine spirit of cooperation and were filing lists of their clients to be investigated by the board. He added that if this information had been forthcoming as requested when the board of review convened early in the summer, that the work could have been completed. He added that many instruments remained untouched by the review board members due to lack of time in completing their report.

The members of the board of review convened yesterday to continue work left unfinished before completing their final report to the board of supervisors, the additional work covering this week having been authorized by the board at its regular September meeting last week.

No Breeze: Day's Race for America Cup is Postponed

Aboard U. S. C. G. cutter ARGO off Newport, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The third race for the America's Cup between the British challenger Endeavour, victor in the first two, and the defending American sloop Rainbow today was postponed until tomorrow for lack of a breeze.

The postponement came only a few minutes before 11:30 A. M. (CST), the deadline beyond which a race cannot be started under cup rules.

The sea was as flat as a millpond with only an occasional puff of wind out of the southwest to ruffle the waters and not enough to give any hope of sailing the race under the time limit of five and one-half hours.

ASHTONITES IN COURT: ENTER PLEA OF GUILTY

Jeanguat, the younger of the two, was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail. The two men were arrested two weeks ago for the robbery of the Ackerson tavern in Ashton.

Matt Egan of May township appeared before Judge Sheehan yesterday afternoon and renewed his bond in the sum of $2,000 which was signed by Mrs. Laura Sherman. He was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault.

Labor Federation Demands Promises from Candidates

Washington, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Pledges of a support for a broad legislative program at the next session of congress, including a 30-hour week and a 6-hour day, are being requested of all candidates for the senate and house as the price of support by the American Federation of Labor.

This represents a change of policy by the federation in its political activities, officials said. Previously it was supported or opposed candidates on the basis of their records already made. Now it is demanding advance promises.

ARSON QUEEN'S CONFESSION IS BASIS WARRANT

Admits Starting Fire Which Took Life of Boy of 11

Chicago, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Bertha Warshovsky, Chicago's 56-year-old "arson queen," so called because of her alleged connection with incendiary fires, has confessed, the authorities say, that she started a blaze that cost the life of an eleven-year-old boy.

Joseph Pecori, who lived with his parents in a third floor apartment above a butcher shop, was the victim of the fire which occurred in 1928. Trapped in the place the boy was badly burned before he leaped from a window. He died shortly afterward.

As a result of the reported confession Thomas Falone, operator of the butcher shop at the time, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging murder. Assistant State Attorney Marshall Kearney Gordon Nash and John Boyle, said they planned to seek murder indictments against Falone and Mrs. Warshovsky today.

Mrs. Warshovsky, who is a grandmother, told the prosecutors, she said, that Falone paid her $174 to start the butcher shop blaze. They added that Falone collected $11,200 in insurance since which time he has expanded his business. They said he now operates five stores.

The woman's confession resulted from an investigation of arson rings recently begun by the State's Attorney's office.

Circus guards today shot to death a raging lion after the beast had broken open his cage in a circus parade, pulled down a wagon and scattered crowds in terror.

Leaping across the radiator of an automobile, the lion leaped up the street and turned on a second horse, sinking his teeth into the animal's head.

Then Patrolman John Robert Paul, advancing almost under the hoofs of the agonized horse, shot the lion.

MAINE MILITIA ORDERED OUT IN TWO BIG CITIES

South Carolina Mill Cities Also Have Some Disorders

Waterville, Me., Sept. 19.—(AP)—National Guardsmen were ordered to duty here today after the wildest riot in the textile strike in Maine to date occurred outside the Lockwood Manufacturing Company mill.

Company G, 103rd Maine Infantry, under command of Captain W. Mansfield, was turned out after local and state highway police fought a hand-to-hand battle with pickets at the mill gates. Six men were arrested and police sought others allegedly implicated in the rioting.

The Lockwood mill, a cotton manufacturing concern, employs 600 operatives, nearly 200 of whom have been on strike. The demonstration was staged in an endeavor to bring other workers into the mill by the picketers.

Mill Is Operating
The mill operated on a greatly curtailed basis.

At about the same time that the Waterville strikers were rioting, pickets in Lewiston, another Maine textile center, took five men and two women pickets from Biddeford into custody as they and other pickets from that city tried to induce employees of the Lewiston Bleachery & Dye Works to join the big strike.

The Waterville rioting broke out after an hour of peaceful picketing. The movement of two women pickets, carrying union banners, toward the mill gates was the signal for trouble. With the United cry of "Let's Go" the pickets swept towards the mill and were met by the police.

ILLINOIS ASST.
ATTY. GENERAL
FATALLY HURT

Earl Houston, Peoria, Died of Injuries at Macomb, Ill.

Macomb, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Earl J. Houston, 33, of Peoria, Assistant Attorney General of Illinois and state Democratic central committeeman, died early today of injuries suffered in a head-on automobile collision north of Macomb last night.

Harry Herring of Springfield, driver of the car, was injured, not seriously, and John Kasserman, also attached to the Attorney General's office at Springfield, escaped unhurt.

Gov. Henry Horner was notified of the accident last night and hurried to Macomb, arriving a few minutes after Houston died. The Governor visited Kasserman a few moments and then returned to the state capital.

The trio had been driving to Galesburg, where Houston had a speaking engagement. They drove past a wagon and crashed into an automobile driven by Eldon Lundstrum of Blandinsville.

NEW OFFICIALS

Supporters of "New Deal" Beaten in Primary Vote

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Mississippi Democratic shuffled the new deck and dealt themselves a new United States senator and three new congressmen, it appeared today.

With nomination tantamount to election, former Governor Theodore Gilmore Bilbo had a lead of more than 4,000 votes over Senator Hubert D. Stephens in yesterday's primary.

Stephens ran on a "stand by Roosevelt and the New Deal" platform.

The vote in 1447 of 1641 precincts gave Bilbo, 95,557 and Stephens 91,131.

The two incumbent congressmen who apparently lost their seats were Jeff Busby and Russell Ellzey. Busby trailed Attorney A. L. Ford of Adkema by 1,049 votes with returns nearly complete.

The vote: Busby, 10,432; Ford, 11,481. Ellzey was 2,000 short of state Senator Dan R. McGhee who polled 21,112 votes.

NOME'S MORALE
RESTORED: HAVE
FOOD FOR WEEKS

Two Eskimos, Thought Dead in Fire, are Found Alive

Nome, Alaska, Sept. 19.—(AP)—With morale restored by assurance of aid from the "outside" and the discovery that two supposed victims of Alaska's greatest fire escaped, Nome began to rebuild today.

Two Eskimos, David Ingapuk and Rodney Puk, first were reported to have been burned to death or killed by dynamite in the cellar of a grocery but after the excitement died down a check showed that they had escaped.

Nome was seriously injured in the $3,000,000 fire which leveled Nome's business district although more than a score were treated in the hospital which fortunately escaped the flames.

Temporary stores opened by merchants who salvaged part of their stocks of food and dry goods before fire razed their establishments took care of the needs of Nomenites and a check showed there was food enough to last five weeks.

A shortage of meat was relieved by the arrival of the Lomen Commercial Company's transport Arthur J. Baldwin with a full cargo of reindeer meat.

THREATEN FARM STRIKE

METHODISTS TO UNVEIL MARKER
IN PARK SUNDAY

To Mark Site of Home of Founders of M. E. Church Here

The dedication of the boulder in Lowell park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock will mark the site where John and Anna Richards erected their home, almost 100 years ago.

The event will be an interesting and significant affair. The Richards were founders of the Methodist church at Dixon's Ferry, representing those earnest followers of John Wesley in England.

This dedication will be one of the first of many items in the three year program celebrating a century of Methodism in Dixon.

Former mayor Frank D. Palmer, chairman of the board of trustees of the church, will present Attorney H. C. Warner who will act as general chairman of the afternoon program. The address will be delivered by Dr. A. M. Pennwell of Chicago.

Edward Vaile will speak for the city park commission and will officially receive the marker. There will be words of greeting by Mayor George C. Dixon, followed by a brief ritual by Dr. Gilbert Stansell, pastor of the Dixon church and others will also participate in the interesting program. The general public is invited to attend this memorable service. Directions for the parking of cars will be given at the entrance of the park.

Classes Entertained at Dacken Home Last Evening

Two Sunday school classes of the Brethren church with their teachers, Marie Thompson and Lena Bowers enjoyed a pleasant evening at the home of William Dacken north of Dixon Tuesday evening. The two classes often have their socials together but this was especially interesting since it was to be their last social together before promotion which takes place October 1, the beginning of the school year.

Everyone feels at home with the Dacken family, and the warm reception coupled with the games, entertainment and fine fellowship made the evening pass quickly. After the games refreshments were served and the jolly group went to their homes, after thanking the Dackens for their splendid entertainment.

Meeting of Riverside P. A. Friday Evening at School

The Riverside P. T. A. held their first meeting at the school house, Friday night, Sept. 14.

Mrs. Bieschke, the president, appointed her committees for the coming year and Mrs. Guntle, read a message from the State President.

Ronald Guntle and Russel Rineking the beginning class, surprised all with their accuracy, in a word test. The fourth and sixth grades then gave a most interesting demonstration of a class in nature study.

Besides the school children there were two little visitors who helped to make the evening a pleasant one for all. Wanda Gray, three years old, spoke her piece so nicely, and Lorraine Pritchard of Stony Point school delighted everyone with her singing. Lorraine, who is nine years old, has an unusual musical talent. Her teacher Miss Mabel Stanley came with her.

Miss Esther Barton of Dixon, was the guest speaker. She held the attention and interest of her listeners as she took them for an imaginary visit to the quaint old town of Santa Fe. From there she took them to an Indian reservation, giving a most interesting picture of the Indians' home, religion and mode of dress.

After adjournment the committee served lemonade and cake.

Meeting of Gap side P.T.A. Friday

The Gap Grove P. T. A. held its first meeting of the school year Thursday evening, Sept. 13th.

The president called the meeting to order and the minutes of the last meeting were approved.

Three new officers were appointed by the president as follows: Mrs. Lizzie Behrends, chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. Leta Lenox, chairman of the refreshment committee; and Mrs. Dorothy Kells, corresponding secretary.

A request was made that the members' dues be paid to the secretary. There being no further business the evening was spent in social chat and getting acquainted with the new teacher Miss Wade, after which refreshments were enjoyed.

Splendid Attendance at P. T. A. Meeting Tuesday

Mrs. Frederic Holch, vice president of the Illinois Parent Teacher Association, spoke to a large group of interested parents and teachers Tuesday afternoon in the South Central School auditorium.

Preceding the open meeting Mrs. Holch, talked to the officers of the local associations. She told the correct attitude of the nominating committee and defined the duties of the association officers.

She considers the technical knowledge of the teachers most useful on advisory committees, but feels the actual work of the association should be done by the mothers.

She named the six organization committees—Program, Hospitality, Membership, Publicity, Finance and Budget and Publications. She spoke of the merit of study clubs.

Mrs. O. P. Goeke, president of the High School P. T. A., opened the general meeting.

Mrs. Wilson Dysart, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd Davies, sang, most beautifully, "Pirate Dreams" and "Little Fellow", for an encore.

Mrs. Goeke announced that the first meeting of the High School P. T. A. would be Oct. 18th, a picnic supper, followed by an evening meeting, the speaker to be Mr. Bradford.

Mrs. Wilhelm, leader of the Mother Singers, announced there would be a practice night for the Mother Singers, next week.

Mrs. Goeke introduced the speaker, Mrs. Holch.

Mrs. Holch told of the necessity of all state Parent-Teachers Associations to contact with their legislators and work in every possible way to carry out the legislative program of the state association, namely—to obtain a new revenue article in the constitution—to raise the state support, which is inadequate. Illinois stands third in wealth and twenty-fifth in per capita expenditures for education.

This is a challenge, Mrs. Holch said, to the 90,000 members of the state Parent-Teacher Association to work for a change in the constitution.

Mrs. Holch advised reading, "Tax Problems in Illinois" by W. Cook. Mrs. Holch concluded her talk by announcing National Parent and Teacher Association day at the Fair. If impossible to attend, an opportunity to hear the program will be given radio listeners at 11:15, Chicago time, over WMAQ, and 3:30-4:30 over NBC.

TRUE BLUE CLASS MEETS THURSDAY

The True Blue class of the Christian church will meet with Mrs. McConaughay, 906 First street at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Dixon Library Has New Books

Going Abroad—Rose Macaulay.
The author's dedication announces the intention of writing an entirely frivolous novel, and she has brought it off to perfection except that there is considerably more than frivolity involved in her satiric treatment of the characters and their various causes. She exhibits perfect charity toward the bouncing missionaries of moral reform who are her targets in this leisurely story.

Much Loved—Ruby Ayers. Breckie lived in shabby gentility with Francesca and the Rover, her aunt and uncle. Francesca played patience everlastingly and never spoke to the Rover. The Rover drank whiskey, listened to Gilbert and Sullivan operas and never spoke to Francesca. Neither of them said very much to Breckie. No wonder she felt lonely and unloved. No wonder she decided that money was the only thing that mattered.

Transient Lady—Octavus Roy Cohen. At the outset three persons arrive in the sleepy, insular little town of Karnak; three persons of another world. These two men and the charming heroine rent an old warehouse and open a skating rink for the amusement of the startled citizens. The venture is a success and they taste of southern hospitality. Then tragedy intrudes upon their simple enterprise—there is a killing, and within an amazingly short space of time the placid town is torn by civic strife of the most violent sort.

Maiden Voyage—Norris. She was a society reporter to whom a romance meant only a news story until—Mrs. Norris does it four times a year.

Flaming Wilderness—Cullum. The story opens with the roar of a forest fire, the splutter and the crumbling of wood, and the driving wind that carried withering heat over the wilderness. A story of the Northwest which provides satisfying thrills.

Electric Torch—Ethel Dell. Their wills at variance, their hearts aflame, Captain John Packersley, whom men admired and women thought unapproachable—and the slight, pale Claire Christleton—significant in the eyes of the majority—were plunged into an almost impossible situation through the ruthless acts of people who knew no law but selfishness. The scene is laid in an East Indian station.

Woman at Thirty—Pascal. Fay Pendleton was in her thirtieth year that was the time when she found herself taking stock when she discovered that she had almost everything she needed, but little, if anything, that she really desired. She was a successful advertising woman who had attained her youthful ambition, but she was also Fay Pendleton, still the attractive and intelligent girl who had deliberately put love behind her, only to carry with her the gnawing memory of a man she had refused to marry ten years before.

Black God—Manners-Sutton. The ferry, run by the demon jester, who when he was tired of a wife was said to tickle her to death; the missionary, a little yellow of complexion, as if his intolerance had affected his liver; old Google, from a cannibal tribe, famous for having eaten thirteen men at a sitting; Madame Boul-Boul's establishment, traders in ivory and slaves; two black women who claimed to have been raised from the dead. The author has lived in the Congo and knows the mysterious ways of the blacks. But it is her measured, ironically suggestive style which makes this book distinguished.

Foundry—Halper. A novel by the enormously improved author of "Union Square." It is an accurately drawn, absorbing story of laborers, clerks and their bosses. Not once does Halper take time out for a personal speech. He has recently been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship, and is now entering on a year of foreign travel.

a good cigarette gives you a lot of pleasure

... just about every cigarette smoker knows that—but here are some other facts to keep in mind ...

For a cigarette to be milder and taste better it must be made of mild, ripe Turkish and home-grown tobaccos.

We wish you could go into the factories and see Chesterfield made. The mild ripe tobacco is cut in long even threads—then packed into the cigarette so as to make Chesterfield draw right and burn evenly.

A good cigarette can give you a lot of pleasure, and we would like for you to try Chesterfield.

CHEMISTS BRING HOPE, MORE THAN DESPAIR.
 The chemist has been getting a bad name for himself lately. It sometimes seems as if he never gets his name in the paper except when he invents a new kind of poison-gas, or devises a new industrial process which will put more men out of work.

It is only fair, therefore, to remind ourselves that there is another side to the ledger. Proceedings of the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society, at Cleveland, show how these scientists are working steadily to make the world a happier place.

For example: Two University of Pennsylvania men report to the society that they have discovered a new substance in the bodies of men which seems to make human tissues resistant to cancer. It is suggested that it may be the presence of this substance in a healthy body which makes it free from cancer—and the absence of it which makes cancer develop.

Not enough is known, yet, to enable one to say what importance this discovery may eventually have. But there is just a chance that the great war on cancer is appreciably nearer final victory because of it.

Another group of research specialists tell how they have developed a drug which deals out death to pneumonia germs.

This drug, seemingly effective against all types of pneumonia germs, is a derivative of an earlier-known compound which, while fatal to the germs, was also very destructive of human tissue—and, therefore, too dangerous to use medically.

The dangers seem to have been overcome; and, once again, while it is too early to predict that the long-sought specific for pneumonia has been found, it is possible that this dreaded disease may be on the verge of being conquered.

Still another chemist reports that the use of copper and iron salts will cure nutritional anemia in infants. Another tells of a new drug for the treatment of fat embolism, a deadly congestion of the lungs which sometimes occurs after a major operation.

All of these things—some of which may have the most profound influence on the effort to reduce human suffering and misery—are simply part of the ordinary, day-to-day work which goes on in our research laboratories.

We seldom hear of this work. The chemist goes his way unsung, and most of us connect his name chiefly with death and destruction. It is only fair to remember that there is another side to it.

FROM ONE SLUM TO ANOTHER.
 Rebuilding dilapidated dwellings in slum areas is an exceedingly important job. But if it is to have the effect it should have, rents in the new dwellings must be within the reach of the people who formerly occupied the slums.

A case in point is coming to light in a midwestern industrial city, where the government is about to spend millions putting up new homes in one of its worst slum areas. Approximately 400 families are being moved out of the buildings that are being torn down—and now it develops that most of them will continue to live in that neighborhood in other dilapidated buildings, or will move out of the neighborhood altogether. The new buildings will be too costly for them.

Spending millions on slum clearance will do little good, if new slums are going to replace the old ones.

LET DIPLOMATS PROTEST.
 It is not exactly surprising that a number of foreign governments have issued protests against revelations that have been made before the Senate munitions investigating committee. Witness have shown how statesmen worked hand in glove with munitions firms, how highly placed politicians in various lands took bribes, and how very exalted personages were not above playing the game for the armaments makers.

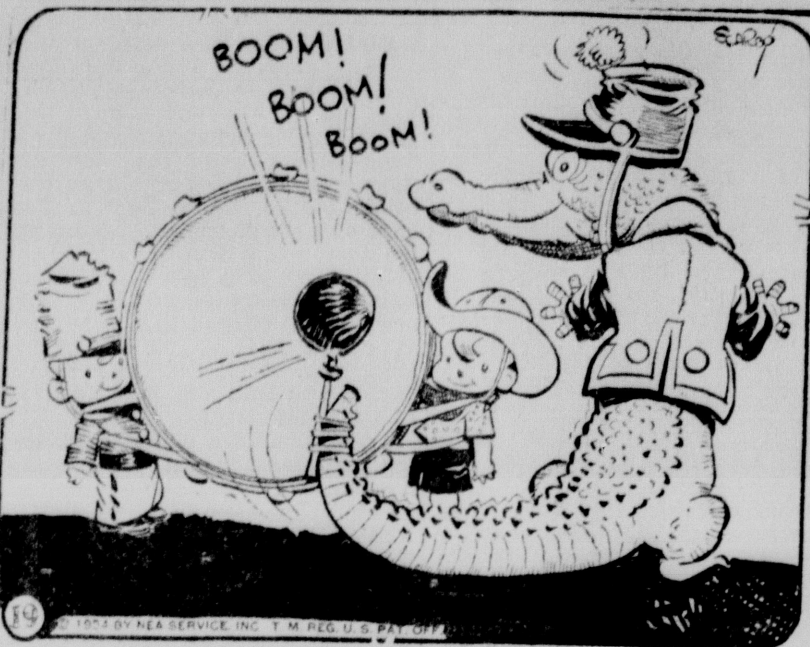

The protests, then, are only natural; but they are not, after all, any skin off the hides of the Senate investigators. The American people want to know all they can about the devious ins and outs of this rather shocking traffic. The senators are doing a fine job of finding out for them. If the revelations plain important people, at home or abroad—well, that's just too bad.

MORE FOR FARMERS.
 Farm purchasing power is going to be up this year, in spite of the drought. Latest estimates are that farm income from the year will exceed $6,000,000,000—fully a billion above last year's figures.

A good part of this increase, of course, is due directly to the federal government's benefit payments. These are expected to run to approximately $780,000,000. Higher prices for farm produce will make up the rest of the anticipated increase.

Now while the bulk of this rise is artificial, the good effects of it should be evident, nevertheless. The farmer will be able to buy more things this year than he bought last. This, in turn, will help to stimulate industrial production—and, we hope, will help to start us on that upward spiral by which the prosperity of each class or group communicates itself to the whole country.

Balancing of the federal budget should wait until more normal business is restored.—J. David Stern, newspaper publisher.

The alligator seemed to smile. Said Coppy, "Gee, he's dressed in style. Why does he wear that uniform? That's what I'd like to know."
 "Perhaps it fills his heart with joy to think that he's a soldier boy, but he could never fight, because he travels much too slow."
 "Don't worry! He dislikes to fight. Your guess, my lad, is far from right," replied the kind old hunter. "That's a band suit he's dressed in."
 "He'll soon show you he's not so dumb. I'll have him play upon a drum." "Gee whizz, the very thought of that," said Coppy, "makes me grin."
 "But, where's the drum? If it's near, I'll very gladly bring it here, and then, if you're not fooling us, we'll have a lot of noise."
 The hunter pointed toward his hut, and answered, "It is in there, but it's heavy. Get some help, lad, from one of the other boys."
 Wee Scouty cried, "I'll lend a hand. I think this whole thing will be grand." Then, off the two tots ran, while Goldy shouted, "Hurry back!"
 Soon Scouty cried out, "Here we come, and say, just look at this big drum. I'm anxious, now, to hear the gator give the thing a whack."
 A drumstick shortly was tied to the big beast's tail. "Ah, that will do," exclaimed the hunter. "Now you'll see a very funny sight."
 Then to the alligator he said, "Be as nice as you can be. Back right up to the drum and swing your tail with all your might."
 The gator did as he was told and through the air loud noises rolled. Fair Doty held her ears and said, "Oh, kindly make him stop."
 "I never thought that he could make such boom, boom, booms. They make me shake, and, if he keeps it up, I'm sure my two eardrums will pop."

Living Our Everyday Lives

COMPENSATIONS
 (By Joseph Fort Newton.)
 Look for the Law of Compensation in life. It is always there and it never fails. It is an antidote for vanity and a recipe for sorrow if we know how to find it and use it. As surely as sunshine follows rain, and the glory of morning sweeps away the darkness of night, so there is some compensation for each of the ills and evils of human life.
 It is the Divine way of balancing the scales, else life as we know it would be too heavy to bear. There is no misery without its aftermath of joy, no cross without its crown.
 Also, if there is no loss without its gain, there is no law that works two ways—a fact we are so apt to forget in our greed for happiness.
 Some who read these words will smile bitterly at the idea of compensations in life. They look back down weary years and wonder—life has been so hard and heartless.
 One can understand the feeling. At times it is difficult not to give up and let go. Disaster has followed fast and followed faster, and we are almost driven to despair.
 But the compensation is there, if we have the insight to detect it and the wit to estimate it. The trouble is that we are too full of our own troubles, too wrapped in gloomy thoughts, to look for the possible silver lining to the clouds.
 We feel the thorns of life and miss the bloom of its roses. The road is so hard and rocky that we fail to see the beauty of the scene on either side of it.
 Many a man has lost his money only to find true friendship for the first time in his life. Other men have never known God until they turned to Him in the darkest hour—driven to their knees, as Lincoln said, because there was nowhere else to go.
 Yes, there are compensations in life. If misfortune comes, square your shoulders, smile—and look out for the compensation. There is sure to be one if you look closely.
 Life can hit hard blows. At times we are blinded by a sudden, awful bereavement, and it takes time to get the dust out of our eyes—we cannot see anything at first. But wait and things will begin to clear up. Then look for the law of compensation and you will find a thread, to follow which will lead you to happiness again.

What All Should Know About The U. S. Constitution

(This is the third of a series of six articles reviewing the history and contents of the U. S. Constitution, in observance of "Constitution Week" and the 147th anniversary of the Constitution's birth, Sept. 17, 1787.)

The Constitution of the United States divides the government into three important branches, each devised to be what has been termed a "check" and a "balance" to the other two.

As against the legislative, therefore, stand the executive and the judiciary. Article Two defines the powers of the President and how he is to be chosen. The manner of choice has been changed by amendment, but the original method was by means of electors chosen by the various states.

The electors were to vote for two candidates, the one receiving the greatest number of votes, if a majority, becoming president, the second highest, vice president. Otherwise the House of Representatives was to choose the president from the five highest.

Article Two also makes the president commander-in-chief of the army, navy and militia of the states, and gives him power, with senatorial consent, to make treaties and appoint major officials under him.

Article Three vests judicial powers in a supreme court and such inferior courts as Congress may establish. It determines the scope of federal jurisprudence, provides for trial by jury, and defines treason.

Under Article Four, equal rights are assured as among the citizens of all states, provision is made for return of escaped slaves, and for return of escaped prisoners.

Another section anticipates admission of new states into the Union and another guarantees to all states a republican form of government and protection from invasion.

Article Five provides for amendments to the Constitution. Article Six establishes supremacy of the Constitution over all other laws of the land and forbids any religious test for holding office. It also accepts responsibility for all public debts of the Confederation.

The Sixth and last article provides for the ratification of the Constitution by nine of the 13 states, to make it effective.

THREE DOWN

The experiences of childhood have been well described as a process of running the gauntlet. The first few years of the child's life are lined with grim hazards.

But in recent years, at least three of these grim hazards have been downed and the years of youth have been rendered safer for it. These three are diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles.

The most complete control, both theoretically and practically, has been achieved in the instance of diphtheria. The immunizing, that is, protective treatment for the prevention of diphtheria has now been reduced to one or two injections. This treatment is so free of hazard and so effective that any child left without its protection is seriously and without warrant handicapped. That there still are deaths due to diphtheria is an indiction hard to explain away.

In scarlet fever, the second of the "three down," it has been found that the early injection of its antitoxin has a favorable effect upon the disease itself and also very appreciably lowers the rate of complications.

Measles, too, has been effectively controlled by the use of what is known as convalescent serum and of parental whole blood. Convalescent serum is derived from the blood of an individual who has had and who is recovering from measles. There is within the liquid portion of such an individual's blood immunizing substances which, when injected into another individual, susceptible and exposed to measles, will either prevent the development of the disease or render the developed attack innocuous.

Convalescent serum is now generally used in very young or weak children, as for example when the child just recovered from one illness becomes exposed to measles. More widespread is the use of parental whole blood. In this process, blood is taken from one of the parents and injected into the child. This seldom prevents the development of measles, but appreciably reduces the severity of the disease.

LOANS MAY BE ADVANCED FOR BUILT-IN WORK

Furnishings That are Part of Property
are Eligible

Houses today, done in the most modern manner, may have as many built-in features as a ship's cabin, practical and convenient for everyday use. New ideas in interior design contemplate more and more built-in furnishings in the home. Grandmother had a pantry and a cupboard and that was all. She didn't think of built-in beds, built-in electric stoves and any of the one hundred and one built-in fittings that the modern women have to save time, space and money.

Under provisions of the National Housing Act, the first section of which is now functioning under the direction of the Federal Housing Administration, money is available to the home owner for modernization of the interior of the house as well as the exterior. It is possible to discard all the old worn out desks, tables, beds, book cases, ironing boards, and other uninspiring articles of furniture, and replace them with furnishings that become definitely a part of the home.

Considered Immovable
Built-in furniture is considered immovable under terms of the National Housing Act, and loans up to $2,000 can be made to construct built-in household equipment.

In ultra modern houses most of the furniture is built in. Certain built-in fittings are practical and may be achieved with a minimum of labor and expense. Any plan completely revolutionizing the interior of the house by discarding much of the furnishings, now in use and replacing them with built-in features should be considered first from the standpoint of utility, then from locality and finally from practicality.

Add Shower Stall
The morning shower has become such a popular American institution that no home is complete without it. But a shower no longer means a rickety sprinkler over the tub, surrounded by a clumsy curtain and almost sure to spill water all over the floor. The modern version of the shower is a separate stall, sunk into the wall and provided with its own drain so that it causes no messy puddles around the tub. Such a stall can be built at slight expense by partitioning off one end of the bathroom and lining the walls with waterproof material which can be installed directly over the old wall, or by tiling.

Add Closet Space
Nobody ever heard of a house that had too many closets. On the contrary, most home owners are painfully conscious of the inadequacy of their supply. But practically every home has some waste space that could be converted into closets. The space under a stairway is a possibility, for instance. Closet space can also be gained by building cabinets in any room.

Obituary

CLARENCE R. JOHNSON
(Contributed)

Clarence R. Johnson was born July 5, 1910, at Toluca, Ill., and departed this life Sunday, Sept. 9, 1934, at 9:10 A. M. He was baptized in the Lutheran faith in his infancy. He became a member of the Immanuel Lutheran church, Palm Sunday, 1933, through the rite of confirmation, pastor A. G. Suchting, officiating at the ceremony. Clarence had been at home in Harmon ever since he left Toluca at the age of 1 year and eight months. He had a gentle nature, a kind disposition, was well liked and had many friends. He was a willing worker and did whatever his hands found to do. On Saturday, Sept. 1st, he attended the opening of the Harmon spur at the junction of Route 89 in company with five other young men. That night found them driving north on the Pump factory road, where the accident occurred that took his life. A front tire blew out on the car in which he was riding. The driver lost control and struck a bridge. Clarence was taken to the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital in Dixon but never fully regained consciousness. On Sunday morning, Sept. 9th, he passed quietly away. Those that deeply mourn his untimely death are his parents, one brother, Melvin, one sister, Florence, and many more relatives and a large circle of friends.

If you are returning to college you should have a Remington Portable typewriter. The price has been reduced. Call and see this splendid machine. Office Supply Department, B. F. Shaw Printing Co.

FAMOUS EDITOR ON AGRICULTURE TO VISIT DIXON

is also a famous breeder of Percheron and fine saddle horses.

His newspaper, ever since he became publisher in 1921, has been devoted to the task of building up sound agriculture in the northwest. By feature stories, editorials on farm development, pure-bred sire selling campaigns, addresses by the publisher and his staff, thousands of wheat and single-crop farmers have been induced to turn to dairying, livestock and swine raising, corn and alfalfa growing.

Presidents Interested
These efforts have attracted the attention of three presidents, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, all of whom have cooperated in the efforts to rebuild Northwestern farming.

Roosevelt was so impressed with the achievements of the publisher that he appointed him American delegate to the World Wheat Conference held in Geneva and London last year, and in Rome last spring. Twenty-two nations signed up a wheat pact agreeing to limit their production and exports of wheat to certain definite quotas, so as to avoid disastrous surpluses and overproduction of wheat. London and Paris newspapers gave Editor Murphy a large share of the credit for selling foreign nations on the idea of cooperation.

Both the publisher and his farm editor, Collisson, have addressed hundreds of audiences of business men and farmers, all over the country. Thousands have heard of the progress made in the northwest in building up sound agriculture, under the Minnesota plan. Many large national conventions of business men have been addressed.

One tour of the east, addressing local advertising clubs, brought in to the Speakers Bureau of the Advertising Federation of America, the following comments from club officials:

Some Comments
"Mr. Collisson is a very forceful speaker, interesting, with some happy off-sides, and held his audience intensely throughout."
"He has a message which not only every national advertiser ought to hear, but his message should also be heard by the executives of all concerns who do a national business."
"Here is a man with a real message—a man in full command of his subject, a man who will hold your interest regardless of your interest in farm products."

"Mr. Collisson is the finest speaker the club has been privileged to hear in many months. I am pleased to say that the club now stands ready to get behind 'the cow, the sow and the little red hen' and push them to an even more glorious future than they now possess."
"I cannot tell you how tremendously we admired Mr. Collisson's presentation of 'The Land of Milk and Money.' I have not heard the club give such resounding and long-lasting applause in a long, long time."

"It was a privilege to see a master workman, a master craftsman and a master showman 'doing his stuff.'"

C. Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for Congressman-at-Large, speaking before the Republican rally at Amboy today said:

"America stands at the crossroads in the midst of a great depression and must choose her future course. It will be what our citizens make it."
"Shall it be a further grant of centralized control with all the powers of finance, industry and agriculture put in the hands of appointed theoretical men in Washington, or shall we go forward by sending to the Congress of the United States, men who would demand that any plan for the direction of the activities of our citizenry shall be fully disclosed, presented and debated in the Congress of the United States?"

Must Resist Death
"This is not a Democratic question as most of us understood the Democratic party. Woodrow Wilson when President of the United States said: 'The history of liberty is the history of limitation of power, not the increase of it. When we resist therefore, the concentration of power is what always precedes the destruction of human liberties.' To that form of Democracy I subscribe."

"The distinguished Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, representing in the Senate a state that has lived for almost three hundred years under a constitutional form of government, said: 'The New Deal taken all in all is not only a mistake, it is a disgrace to the nation and the time is not far distant when we shall be ashamed of having wandered so far from the dictation of common sense and common honesty.'"

Not Partisan Issue
"This is not a partisan question. It is a question of whether the American people desire to continue to maintain a government of divided powers, nicely distributed among the people who make up and support that government, or a dictatorial power with the right to hand these powers to appointed persons."

"The only way we can meet this issue is to send to Congress this year Republican congressmen not to obstruct or destroy, but to demand that every vital question pertaining to agriculture or business, man and citizen be submitted for debate before it is put into operation and enforced by fine and imprisonment."

Milton E. Jones of Williamsville, Republican nominee for Congressman-at-Large, said:

"The farmers do not object to paying higher prices for their requirements if such higher prices are justified by a corresponding improvement in the prices for the things he raises and produces."

"There is not too much food in this country today, in fact the drought has taught us that we should not tamper with the laws of nature. If we can recreate confidence and credit the underfed people of this country today, it will quickly use all of our surplus."
"The future prosperity of the farm depends first on a limitation definitely set on the amount of taxes to be assessed against the farm property and the ability to borrow money on our land which is the foundation of all the wealth of the nation. Distressed farmers should be allowed and the government must provide means for them to borrow money at a lower rate of interest and spread over a longer period of years and further the cost of financing these loans must be greatly reduced. The method employed by the government today in refinancing farmers' loans is wholly inadequate and accompanied by unnecessary delay. It multiplies the danger and problems of agriculture and prevents our recovery. The government should not demand a higher rate of interest from our farmers than it pays to the people for the money it borrows when at the same time it imports grains, meats and blackstrap molasses in competition with our farm products. This must be stopped and if given an opportunity, I shall do my best to stop it."

STRIKE PICKETS IN PRISON CAMP NOT DISPLEASED

Like Food and Have No
Work: Guarded by Georgia Militia

Atlanta, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Interned in one of the strangest prisons in the nation, 16 women and 112 men arrested by National Guardsmen for textile strike disorders commented today that "the meals are mighty fine," and some of them added: "We're not having a bad time at all."

With the possible exception of a few men who wondered what the "little woman" would say when they got back home, there didn't seem to be a downcast person in the camp today. However, they are in prison "ideally."

The odd prison, built overnight at the National Guard rifle range near here, requires no more of its inmates than that they cause no trouble. Meals, beds, ice water, and medical care are free. There is no work, and they are encouraged to spend their time pleasantly.

Get Better 'Grub'
"And say," said E. N. Brown of Hogansville, "I ain't had a tail. The grub is a little better than I have been getting during the depression."

But S. E. Boswell, also of Hogansville, says with a grin that he and "some other boys" may have something to worry about.

He leaned on the barbed-wire fence enclosing tents and the half-acre men's prison and confided: "You see, the little woman doesn't know where I went when I left home Monday at 2 in the morning to go to Newnan for picketing. I'll bet I catch the devil when I get home," he said with a grin. "But some of the other boys are in the same boat, and I reckon somebody has told the wife by now that the National Guard took in a bunch of us at Newnan Monday morning."

Not far from the men's prison is a one-story building, in a grove of pine trees, housing the women. The girls—most of the women are under 20 years old—chat about their sweethearts, the strike, the food—which they praise—and the clothing problem.

LOTTERY PLAN FOR RELIEF IN N. Y. ATTACKED

Courts May be Asked to Pass on Legality of Scheme

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A broadside of criticism was directed today at the city's proposals to raise relief funds through new taxes and a municipal lottery. Threat of a legal fight against the lottery was voiced.

No sooner had the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate passed the hurriedly drawn-up measures than protests were raised in several quarters.

The Rev. George Drew Egbert, president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, said the lottery would "sap the morals of our citizens." He said the society is consulting attorneys to decide what legal action to take.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who accepted the lottery plan after his original proposal for raising money had been rejected, admitted a lottery stood about one chance in ten of being declared legal.

The New York Federation of Churches voted a "vigorous" condemnation of the scheme. The Board of Trade, through its president, Percy C. Magnus, said "the moral sense of the community is shocked."

Protests against the tax on federal income taxes and on the levy of one-tenth of one per cent on gross business receipts also were directed at the city administration. Nevertheless the indications were that the measures would boom law at the end of the five days required by statute. Just how soon a test of the legality of the lottery plan is to be made has not been indicated.

LINDELL'S BOYS WORKING OUT IN TOUGH SESSIONS

Dixon High Team Has Given Promise of Going Places

By ROBBIN

With the thud of pigskins and the sharp crack of a tackler and ball carrier, Coach Lindell's football team of 1934 is rounding into perfect condition.

The team of this year is very strong and fast. Eight lettermen returned to school at the end of the summer months and promptly went out for football. These experienced men, assisted by talented rookies, are expected to go a long way in gaining laurels and victories for their school this season.

The players have a team spirit that is impossible to equal. Everyone of them are working hard and training for their positions. The leading candidates for the line are: center—Bob Mosholder last year's regular, Louis Schumm, and George Campbell; guards—Donald Barnhart and Kenneth Reese, the two who successfully held these positions in 1933, Dick Boos, Stultz, Auman and Parker; tackles—Gerald Cruthoff letterman, Leslie Marshall, Ray Wirth, and Bob Evans; ends—Lloyd Miller, star freshman of last year's line, Red Finagan, also a letterman, Art Klein, Bob Brown, Emil Tappanner, and Monk Ware.

Backfield prospects: Quarterback Bob Underwood the main cog of Dixon's football teams of 1934 and 1933, Bob Coakley a fast running sophomore, and Harvey Little; halves—Lyle "Orlando" Snader one of the fastest men trying to gain a position; Ankeny a young freshman player; Joe Murphy, a tough happy-go-lucky Irishman; Clifford Swandland a brilliant running man; and Rudolph Bassetti; fullback—Marvin Rebuck one of last year's linemen, and Lloyd Miller who at present is playing in both the backfield and the line.

Lawton Lost to Team

Freddie Lawton who was expected to play in a regular half-back position, underwent an operation for appendicitis late last week. His loss to the squad will be felt, especially on offense when it comes to running interference and the need to gain a few yards of ground. Not only will he be missed because of his value but also because of his good nature. Freddie did not have an enemy in school.

Dixon High Will Open Its Football Season Next Saturday, at Rock Falls.

Rock Falls will have practically the same team that they had last year. They are heavy and fast, and were the champions of the Rock River Valley conference in 1933. A majority of the eleven that will start against Rock Falls Saturday have faced them before. These men are determined not to let the same thing happen this year as in the previous season. They mean to offer everything that is in their power to hold or defeat their opponents. Whatever the outcome of the game, the victors will be glad to have their first encounter over with.

Six Teams in Loop

The North Central Conference is composed of six teams: Dixon, DeKalb, Sterling, Mendota, Belvidere and Rochelle. The way in which the league will finish this year is very problematic. Every school has a good team and able coaches. No one among the men that know football attempts to forecast the team that will come out on top this year because of the great competition existing in every game.

Dixon Well Coached

The coaches of the different schools are brilliant, but when it comes to handling eighty odd men, some green and others experienced, the coaching staff of the Dixon high school is unequalled to any in the conference or state. Head Coach C. B. Lindell has trained and taught squads the fine ethics of a smart team in the past five years that he has been at Dixon. The Assistant Coach Sharpe has been of great value in helping the players on the "B" team gain experience and have them prepared for the big team when there is a vacancy to be filled. Athletic Director Bowers takes care of the injuries and sees that the boys are given proper medical attention. With this array of three fine, well-liked men at their head, the squad of 24 is willing to fight and give everything they have. The outcome of this season is impossible to foretell, but whatever it is, winners or losers, the pool-hall coaches and grandstand players, cannot justly find fault with the coaches nor the team of Dixon high school.

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Chronicle says Patrick John O'Dea, middleweight football sensation of the late 1890's, has turned up in San Francisco to smile at recent suggestions he may have been killed in the World War.

The Patrick O'Dea, who for four years on the University of Wisconsin team established himself as one of the greatest kickers of football, is very much alive, the paper said.

Since he vanished almost 20 years ago, the paper added, O'Dea has been living under the name of Charles J. Mitchell and as such is now secretary-manager of the Woodward, Calif., Auto Club and

DETROIT TIGERS

SHUT OUT YANKS FOR SECOND TIME

While Newsom, Browns' Pitcher, Loses a One-Hit Game

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers were credited today with another outstanding baseball feat as they continued their career toward the American League pennant. They not only had beaten the challenging Yankees twice but they had shut them out two days in succession as they built their lead up to 7 1-2 games.

That stunt had not been done in over five years, not since the Browns inflicted three whitewashes in a row on the Yankees back in 1929. Following Al Crowder's 3-0 triumph Monday, young Lynwood Row came through yesterday to limit the New Yorkers to six hits and win 2 to 0. The Tigers need only two more victories regardless of the outcome of all New York's games, to clinch the flag.

Giants' Going Rough

In the National League the Giants found the going a bit tougher and failed to gain although the second-place Cardinals were kept idle by rain at Boston. The Giants split a doubleheader with the last-place Reds, winning the second game 4 to 2 with the aid of Mel Ott's 35th homer and a couple of walks of Allyn Stout that forced in runs. Cincinnati took the tenning opener 2-0 when Chick Hafey broke up a mound duel between Benny Frey and Fred Fitzsimmons with a home run.

The third-place Cubs also broke even, beating the Phillies 7 to 3 with a 12-hit attack in the opener but losing the second clash 8 to 1.

Lost One-Hit Game

The pitching feats the league leaders saw faded out considerably when compared to Buck Newsom's stunt of pitching a one-hit game for the Browns and losing it 2 to 1 to the Red Sox. The hit, a single by Roy Johnson, followed a pair of fairs in the tenth inning and brought in the winning run. Two more passes, an error and a fielder's choice accounted for the earlier Boston tally.

The combined efforts of the Athletics and the Indians sent Philadelphia into sixth place in the American League standing and Washington down to seventh. Because of the Browns' six-hit elbowing, the A's pounded out a 6-0 triumph over the White Sox while Cleveland downed the Senators twice, 5-4 and 9-6.

The Brooklyn Dodgers trounced the Pirates 9 to 4.

The National League pennant race marked time for the day with the league leading Giants remaining 3 1/2 games ahead of the Cardinals. The schedule found the Giants with 10 games remaining to be played, while the Cardinals have 14.

Buck Newsom lost his chance to win a no-hit game in 9 innings through the Browns' failure to hit in the pinches and because of an unearned run scored by Boston in the second inning.

The Browns had numerous chances, as they made 10 hits and had four bases on balls, but they left 12 men on base, none in scoring position. They had another man thrown out at third base.

GAMES WON BY CROSSING GOAL LINE OF ENEMY

So. California's Coach Isn't Worried About New Ball and Rules

Berkeley, Calif., Sept. 19.—(AP)—While his coaching colleagues are debating the merits of the new football ball or arguing the why and wherefores of the various rules changes, Bill Ingram is building his 1934 University of California team on the premise: "ball games are won by crossing the other fellow's goal line."

The big fellow, who won his playing spurs as a quarterback star at the U. S. Naval Academy, views "all this hue and cry" over the new ball and the rules changes as "just a lot of ballyhoo."

"I'm opposed to continual tampering with the rules but in these changes I can't see where any harm has been done," says Ingram.

So far as he knows, none of his boys has been able to distinguish between the new ball and the old one. If you put the two of them alongside each other I doubt if they could pick them out.

"The object of the game remains the same," he said. "You can't win if you don't down the ball behind the other fellow's goal line. Any changes will affect my team neither more nor less than the other team."

Although he will have a third team composed of speedy players which he intends to send into games occasionally as a unit to "run the legs off the opposition," Coach Ingram does not think scores will be larger this year than before.

Beginning his fourth season at California, Ingram has what is considered the best material since he took over the reins. The Bear line, composed of veterans, is expected to equal if not exceed any on the Pacific coast. It is heavy and powerful.

ILLINI WEIGHT AVERAGE TO BE SOME BETTER

Zuppke's Line Will be Little Heavier this Fall

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Bob Zuppke has no assurance that the group of candidates he is now preparing for the 1934 football season will be any better than last year's squad which finished fifth in the Western Conference. But the weights are in favor of the current Illini production.

Last year's squad, with the lightest line in the conference and Dave Cook the only man in the backfield who scaled more than 175 pounds, had an average weight of 177 pounds.

The line averaged 179 pounds from end to end while the backfield members tipped the scale at a 174 pound average.

The weight chart on the three leading candidates for each position on this year's squad indicates an average line weight of 188 pounds in the line and 170 pounds in the backfield. The team average on the leading candidates is 182 pounds.

The heaviest candidate is Frank Barnhart, Ottawa tackle prospect, who scales 212 pounds. While Jack Beynon at 157 pounds is the lightest man listed in the group of 22 men.

In yesterday's scrimmage Zuppke used the following lineup: Waller, 171, and Nelson, 177, ends; Antilla, 188, and Galbreath, 178, tackles; Gryboske 184, and Bennis, 184, guards; Sayre, 179, center; Beynon, 157, quarterback; Bradley, 160, and Proschauer, 177, halfbacks; and Fischer, 180, fullback.

MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS RAEBURN, 18, and pretty, slopes with RUSSELL, handsome swimming instructor. Russ goes to Miami, promising to send for her later, and Boots gets a job in a New York department store.

Russ does not write. Months pass and then word comes that he has been killed in a motorboat accident.

Too good to ask her parents for help, Boots travels alone. She meets DENIS PENWAY, young author, who introduces her to EDWARD VAN STUYVER, and beautiful KAY CHILLINGFORD. Denis helps Boots get a job in a book shop. Van Stuyver, whom she has been avoiding, turns up again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

BOOTS faced Edward soberly across the small table. In a corner, screened behind flowering shrubs in green tubs, a string of chachas softly played.

"I don't honestly know," she confessed. "I don't know what to say."

Russ had been dead for eight months now. Whenever she thought of him it was with a little tug of pain at her heartstrings. She knew now that what she had felt for Russ was merely attraction. If he had lived their life together would have been a mockery. Just the same, she was not ready to be Edward's wife. It wasn't right—it wasn't decent—that Russ, with his big smile and his hearty voice and his cheerful swagger, should be so soon forgotten.

"We could slip away and be married very quietly, don't you see," Edward was saying ingratiatingly. "No publicity."

She made a little movement of dissent. "You're rushing me so," she complained. "I only said I would consider it."

"You like me, don't you?" Edward stared at her rather discontentedly.

"Of course I do. But that's not enough."

"Nonsense," said Edward triumphantly and with the air of settling the discussion.

The thought flashed into Boots' mind that marriage with Edward would square off old scores with Sylvia and Patty and all the girls who had hurt her during that last summer in Larchmont. Oh, but did all that matter? When she married it must be for love and love alone, not because her ring would make Sylvia Rivers open her eyes more widely.

Ah, but what Edward didn't understand was that liking wasn't enough to justify marriage. She had rushed pell mell into marriage before, unconsidering, like a child playing a new game. Her lesson had been brief and bitter.

Edward had everything to recommend him, she reminded herself. Looks, money, family, position. He had an equable disposition. His big laugh rang out heartily on every occasion. What matter then if her pulses did not race at his approach? It was madness to expect that racing of the pulses. Denis who stirred this response in

LATER, in the shop, Frances Gawtry said to her, "He's really a very nice lad. I think you're a lucky girl." Someone else had said that—who? One of the girls at Lacy's. But Frances was different. She was more worldly, more assured and she, too, thought Edward splendid.

Insensibly Boots was affected by these various pronouncements. She was kinder to Edward, gentler with him, sweeter, so that he came to adopt a completely possessive air with her. By October when her year of mourning for Russ was almost up she had met his people, been tacitly approved by them. The web tightened around her.

One warm, rainy October morning she was alone in the shop when a slim, middle-aged woman in a bright blue raincoat walked in. She was silhouetted against the light and Boots came forward with the polite, mechanical smile reserved for customers. Her manner changed abruptly. She rushed into the other woman's arms.

"Mother! Why, mother!" They were laughing and crying her belonged to someone else. . . .

AS though diving her thoughts, Edward said carelessly, "Saw Kay and Denis last night."

Her heart raced like a wild thing; stopped; raced again. Her voice was very cool, unearing. "Did you really?"

"Ummmm. At the Casino. Kay looked a knockout."

How did Denis look, cried her hungry heart. Was he thin and fine drawn, silent and aloof? Was he mocking and cruel? Did he speak of me?

Along she said, "She's very good looking."

Edward ate caviar with relish, nodding. He liked good food, good wines. He always had the best table at restaurant or night club. He had ringside seats at the fights, aisle stube for first nights of good plays. If she married Edward she wouldn't have to worry about bills. She would have ample furs to wrap around her, sleek chiffons and silks, fine laces. . . .

"What's on your mind, lovely?" She smiled at him. "Will Denis and Kay be married soon, do you think?"

"Don't know. They said so last summer. Probably they'll just run down to City Hall some morning and do it without fuss. . . ."

Let them do it and be over with it, Boots cried within herself, that icy hand squeezing her heart. Let them marry and send out cards and have a penthouse and a cook and books and beds and the rest of it. Then I'll put him out of my mind forever. I won't be thinking of another woman's husband. . . .

Kay as a young wife, dark, glowing, beautiful; Denis bending over her, proud, disdainful of all others. No, no, she couldn't bear it! She would be going back and forth to the Bay Tree every day and some day she would meet Denis on the street. Oh, better to be dead and buried than to meet Denis then!

"We'll go abroad after we married," Edward was saying fatuously. "You've never been, little thing, have you? We'd do Paris and London and Vienna and Budapest. . . ."

She listened to him idly, as in a dream. She promised nothing but her eyes smiled vaguely and he accepted this as half a promise.

Happy School Reunion. Former pupils of the "old white school" and their guests to the number of fifty met in response to the summons, at the home of Miss Adella Helmershausen last Friday, September 14th. It had been planned to gather on the spacious lawn adjoining the playground of the old school, but rain prevented this; however, the hostess and her sister, Miss Alice, graciously arose to the occasion and soon everybody was comfortably and happily inside the house. Each one upon entering was registered and happy greetings were heard as old friends and acquaintances met.

The hour set for gathering was 11:30, and by noon the rooms were comfortably filled. Promptly at 13 o'clock the old school bell in the belfry pealed out its greeting to the "boys and girls" of by-gone years who had passed over the stile and in through the big door so many times at its call. Everyone stood, faced the east, and gave the old bell a salute in response to its ringing—and then came dinner. Rev. C. W. Lahman returned thanks, then the hostesses and their able helpers, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Erickson and Mrs. Mary Emmert, served the bounteous picnic lunch which had been provided.

Immediately following the lunch a short program was enjoyed. Jack Josephine and Maxine Kelley sang a selection and Supt. Hanson spoke a few words of greeting before they returned to school. The balance of the program was largely reminiscence of the old school days, and it's a lucky thing that today's pupils were not present when pranks of those days were described: "Eddie" Wingert told very interestingly of his boyhood memories—of life in Franklin Grove, of the natural advantages they enjoyed—of the woods, the creek, and "Zug's hill" for coasting; also of various pastimes that the younger boys of that time originated and developed for their entertainment. "Jim" Lincoln told of some of the pranks that are a part of school history; "Bill" Gorton illustrated very ably his training as a drummer; Anne Kreitzer Group read the roll of pupils; Miss Helmershausen and others told of happy memories connected with school days, one of which was the wedding of a dear-ly-loved teacher, Miss Maggie Bailey, in the old band hall with a Christmas tree and lovely gifts for her pupils. On inquiry it was found that seven of those present attended the wedding, which will always be a bright spot in school annals, though "Posie" Kreitzer Senger said she cried because they lost their teacher. A letter from Frank G. Scott of Aueria, Iowa, was read in which he expressed his deep regret that he could not be present. It was voted to send him a message of greeting from the group. The name of his respected and loved father, Mr. Thos. W. Scott, was heard many times during the day. For he was one of the teachers in the old school who made a deep impression on the pupils and the whole community as well.

Miss Helmershausen presented each guest a picture of the old school-house, which will bring back fond memories of school days as well as of the happy reunion of last Friday. Frank Senger took some snap shots of the group, between showers. Those present at the gathering were: Co. Supt. and Mrs. L. W. Miller, Attorney and Mrs. E. E. Wingert, Mrs. Anna Zoeller Kreitzer and daughter, Mrs. Bess Smith, all of Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Griffith, (Ada Hunt) of Ashton; Supt. and Mrs. L. T. Hanson, Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Lahman, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo H. Brewer, (Annie Gaus), Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Dierdorff (Anna Mathe), William A. Gorton, Mr. and Mrs. J. H.
